

MATTHEW TARDUNO

THE BASICS

---

I am a first year PhD student in Berkeley's Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics. My research interests include climate change and transportation policy.

EDUCATION

---

|           |   |
|-----------|---|
| CURRENT   | University of California, BerkeleyPhD student in Agricultural and Resource Economics   |
| 2012-2016 | Williams CollegeEconomics (Highest Honors) and MathematicsThesis: Consumer Responses to British Columbia's Carbon Tax |

WORK EXPERIENCE

---

|           |  |
|-----------|--|
| 2017-2018 | University of California, BerkeleyReader for EEP 100, taught by Ethan Ligon (Fall 2017) and Jeff Perloff (Spring 2018).   |
| 2016-2017 | Stanford UniversityResearch assistant to health economist Marcella Alsan, whose research focuses on socioeconomic disparities and health outcomes.                                  |
| 2015      | Office of California State Senator Carol LiuAssisted writing comments for environmental impact reports and cost-benefit analyses for highway projects in Californias 25th district. |

SKILLS

---

|             |   |
|-------------|---|
| PROGRAMMING | Proficient in Python, Stata, R, Git, ArcGIS, HtmlVisit my Github for examples of past projects. |
|-------------|---|