

MATTHEW TARDUNO

THE BASICS

I am a PhD student in Berkeley's Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics. My research interests include climate change and transportation policy.

EDUCATION

CURRENT University of California, Berkeley

PhD student in Agricultural and Resource Economics

Fields: Environmental Economics, Public Economics

2012-2016 Williams College

Economics (Highest Honors) and Mathematics

Thesis: Consumer Responses to British Columbia's Carbon Tax

WORK EXPERIENCE

University of California, Berkeley

CURRENT Research Assistant at the Energy Institute

SPRING 2019 Research Assistant to Reed Walker

FALL 2018 Graduate Student Instructor for EEP 100

2017-2018 Reader for EEP 100, taught by Ethan Ligon (2017) and Jeff Perloff (2018).
Stanford University

2016-2017 Research assistant to health economist Marcella Alsan, whose research focuses on socioeconomic disparities and health outcomes.

2015 Office of California State Senator Carol Liu

Assisted writing comments for environmental impact reports and cost-benefit analyses for highway projects in Californias 25th district.

SKILLS

PROGRAMMING Proficient in Python, Stata, R, Git, ArcGIS, Html

Visit my Github for past projects.