

MATTHEW TARDUNO

THE BASICS

I am a PhD student in Berkeley's Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics. My research interests include climate change and transportation policy.

EDUCATION

CURRENT	University of California, Berkeley PhD student in Agricultural and Resource Economics Fields: Environmental Economics, Public Economics
2012-2016	Williams College Economics (Highest Honors) and Mathematics Thesis: Consumer Responses to British Columbia's Carbon Tax

WORK EXPERIENCE

	University of California, Berkeley
CURRENT	Research Assistant to Reed Walker
FALL 2018	Graduate Student Instructor for EEP 100
2017-2018	Reader for EEP 100, taught by Ethan Ligon (2017) and Jeff Perloff (2018).
	Stanford University
2016-2017	Research assistant to health economist Marcella Alsan, whose research focuses on socioeconomic disparities and health outcomes.
2015	Office of California State Senator Carol Liu Assisted writing comments for environmental impact reports and cost-benefit analyses for highway projects in Californias 25th district.

SKILLS

PROGRAMMING	Proficient in Python, Stata, R, Git, ArcGIS, Html Visit my Github for examples of past projects.
-------------	---